

JULY 2026 • ISSUE 08 •

Marvel outdoors

The Creat Hike

Big trails, quiet camps,
and practical ways to spend more time outside.

WONDERFUL!

THE 5 BEST TRAILS IN WEST INDIA |
LIVING THE #VANLIFE | CAN THE SALGUERRO
BE SAVED? | THE GROVER WOOD EXPERIENCE

Table of Contents

7

The Great Hike

A trail guide for steady climbs, wide views, and a rewarding finish.

9

The Salguerro

What thoughtful van travel looks like beyond the highlight reel.

13

Crover Wood

The people working to protect a landscape worth knowing.

15

#VanLife special

A field-tested route through forests, ridgelines, and open country.

Marvel outdoors

Sure – here's a random fictional Mumbai address you can use for a design/poster:
24, Palm View Road, Andheri
West, Mumbai, Maharashtra
400053, India

Editor-in-Chief
Abhinav harley

Managing Editor
karina khan

Content Director
vikram sighn chavwan

Art Directors
Aditya bobade, kartik gorle, abhijit jawale

Photographers
raju bhatiya , rahul ghode, deep raghuvanshi

Contributing Writers
amit bhadana , ashish canchalani , harsh beniwal
, joseph vijay

CONTRIBUTORS

bhim raut

An outdoor writer covering trails, conservation, and life on the road.

abhi gavit

A gear reviewer who values simple systems and dependable essentials

vinod raut

A field photographer drawn to changing light and remote landscapes.

pragati kumar

A conservation reporter exploring the people protecting wild places.

parth deore

A hiking guide who turns local knowledge into practical route advice.

chetan sinha

An editor focused on accessible adventures and responsible time outdoors.

From the Editor

Welcome to the July 2026 issue of Marvel Outdoors. This edition celebrates the simple pull of a well-marked trail, a quiet camp, and the view that arrives after a patient climb.

We explore memorable routes, the realities of life on the road, and the communities protecting the landscapes we love.

Along the way, you will find practical ideas for packing lighter, travelling thoughtfully, and choosing adventures that match your time and experience.

Take what is useful, tread carefully, and enjoy the miles ahead.

the up side down
expirience

"A good trail changes the pace of the day - and often the way we see it."

adventure

This issue came together through trail days, local interviews, and careful reporting from the people who know these landscapes best.

We hope it helps you choose an adventure that fits, prepare with confidence, and return with a deeper respect for the places that make the journey worthwhile.

Aharley

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

The Great Hike

By kalsubai peak
Photography by Abhinav harley

A steady climb, reliable trail notes, and wide-open views make this route worth the early start.

"A good trail changes the pace of the day—and often the way we see it."

The most useful gear was also the simplest: comfortable shoes, a reliable map, and layers that worked across sun, wind, and shade.

Along the route, volunteers maintain drainage, repair signs, and protect fragile sections from erosion. Their work is easy to miss, but it shapes every successful day outside.

Responsible travel begins with small choices. Staying on the trail, packing out waste, and respecting seasonal closures help keep the landscape healthy.

Life on the road offers freedom, but it rewards realistic planning. Reliable stops, quiet overnight options, and a flexible schedule make the experience more sustainable.

Along the route, volunteers maintain drainage, repair signs, and protect fragile sections from erosion. Their work is easy to miss, but it shapes every successful day outside.

Responsible travel begins with small choices. Staying on the trail, packing out waste, and respecting seasonal closures help keep the landscape healthy.

Life on the road offers freedom, but it rewards realistic planning. Reliable stops, quiet overnight options, and a flexible schedule make the experience more sustainable.

Local knowledge improved every stage of the journey. Rangers and guides pointed us toward safer timing, less crowded routes, and details no map could fully capture.

